FOREWORD

BELIEVING that the administrations of President Franklin D. Roosevelt, which have heralded the advent of a new deal for the people of the United States, will go down through the ages of time as one of the great milestones in the march of human progress, the editor and compiler of this volume has deemed it appropriate to identify the men and women who are leading the hosts of Democracy in California, as well as those, who have been chosen by the electorate, and by appointment, to play a role in this great, modern-day renaissance.

In compiling this third edition of WHO'S WHO IN THE NEW DEAL, California Edition, special effort has been made to include the officials of the state administration, who have assumed office since the second edition went to press.

Owing to the limited number of democratic office holders in California prior to 1939, the previous editions sought to identify federal officials, party leaders, state and county committeemen and committeewomen and officials of the various party organizations. In this edition the eligibility standards have been tightened to give proper recognition to those playing the more important roles, and to serve as a ready reference of biographical data concerning our public and party officials.

Diligent effort has been made to contact all such Californians, but, as many are playing their parts in widely scattered arenas, and their addresses are unknown to the editor, regret is expressed that not all, who should be included, will have their names appear within the pages of this volume.

In compiling this data, the editor is indebted to WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA for certain biographical information not otherwise available to him, and to the following party leaders who have assisted in making possible this volume: Mrs. James A. Metcalf, Stockton; Mrs. Margaret R. Robinson, Fresno; Mrs. O. P. Hanna, Long Beach; Clarence J. Novotny, San Diego, Hugh C. McMillan, Ventura, John C. Clark, Berkeley; Gerald F. Harrington, Oakland; J. Edwin Mattox, San Francisco; Harold Rogers, Modesto and Robert A. Riddell, Lewis A. Pierce, Esther Lea and Alfred Blatz of Los Angeles.

Brief Biographies

FRANKLIN DELANO ROOSEVELT

Thirty-first President of the United States

• FRANKLIN DELANO ROOSEVELT was born at Hyde Park, New York, January 30, 1882, the son of James and Sara Delano Roosevelt. He attended school at Groton Academy, in Massachusetts. Graduated from Harvard University in 1904 and from Columbia Law School in 1907. He was admitted to the bar and practiced law in New York City, 1907-1910. Elected to New York State Senate, 1910—re-elected 1912.

Appointed Assistant Secretary of the Navy in President Wilson's Cabinet, 1913, which position he held until 1920. He was in charge of the inspection of American naval forces in European waters in 1918 and of naval demobilization in 1919.

In 1920 he received the Democratic nomination for the vice presidency on the ticket with James M. Cox, but was defeated with the rest of the ticket.

In 1921 Mr. Roosevelt's career was interrupted by an attack of infantile paralysis which would have disheartened the average man but his indomitable courage made him victor over this dread disease, and during his slow recovery he was instrumental in establishing a foundation at Warm Springs, Georgia, where other sufferers might be benefited as he was.

Elected Governor of New York state in 1928, re-elected in 1930.

Elected President of the United States November 8, 1932, in a sweeping political revolution, by an electoral vote of 472 to 59 and a plurality of the popular vote of approximately seven million.

Re-elected President November, 1936, with the greatest electoral and popular majority ever accorded a Chief Executive of the United States, carrying all states in the Union except Maine and Vermont.

On March 17, 1905, he married Anna Eleanor Roosevelt, of New York. They are the parents of the following children: Anna Eleanor (Mrs. John Boettiger), James, Elliott, Franklin D., and John A.

The 1932 landslide that carried the second Roosevelt into the White House also resulted in giving the new President the support of a Congress controlled by his own, the Democratic party, while the greater landslide in 1936 further increased the Democratic majorities in both houses of Congress.

The family home is the President's birthplace at Hyde Park, New York.

JOHN NANCE GARNER
Vice-President

• JOHN NANCE GARNER was born in a log cabin at Blossom Prairie, Red River County, Texas, November 22, 1869, the son of John N. and Sarah G. Garner, pioneers. He had little formal schooling, but was educated by an aunt and later attended Vanderbilt University for one term. Returning, he punched cattle in the Panhandle to support himself while studying law at night. He was admitted to the bar in 1890 and started practicing law at Uvalde, Texas, where he helped edit a weekly paper. As he prospered he bought into the State Bank of Uvalde, and as time went on secured control of the bank. He first entered public life as a county judge and was elected to the Texas House of Representatives for two terms—1898-1902.

Mr. Garner was elected from the fifteenth district of Texas to the 58th-72nd Congresses, 1903-1933.

He became ranking member of the Ways and Means Committee and minority leader, and when the Democrats won the control of the House, was elected Speaker in 1931. In his long service he introduced but two bills and spoke infrequently. He has a rare gift of persuasion, achieving his ends largely by strategy. His friendship with Speaker Longworth was classic. He is rugged and ruddy, with keen blue eyes and short-cropped snow-white hair. He is an enthusiastic hunter and fisherman.

Mr. Garner married Miss Ettie Rheiner, of sturdy Texas stock, November 25, 1895. She had become proficient in stenography at a girls' seminary and has acted as Mr. Garner's secretary during his entire congressional career. With wide political information and acquaintance, she has a notable grasp on public questions. She has always opened his office by 7:30 a. m. They have, so far as possible, avoided social affairs, retiring at 9:30 p. m.

The Garners have one son, Tully C. Garner, a banker in Uvalde; he is married and has a young daughter, Genevieve.

CORDELL HULL
Secretary of State

• CORDELL HULL was born on his well-to-do parents' farm near Carthage, Tennessee, October 2, 1871, the son of William and Elizabeth Riley Hull. His early occupation was rafting logs down the Cumberland River. He studied law at Cumberland University, and soon after receiving his degree, entered politics, his first service being in the State Legislature.

During the Spanish-American War he captained a company of the 40th Tennessee Volunteers.

Because he once sat on the district bench; most Tennesseeans still call him "Judge."

In 1906 he was elected to the House, where he wrote the first Federal income tax law (1913), the first Federal inheritance tax law (1916). When the Harding landslide put him out of office for two years he served as chairman of the Democratic National Committee. Back in the House in 1923, he was promoted to the Senate in 1930

Cordell Hull has spent twenty-four years of his life at the National Capitol and experience has given him a tremendous fund of broad, practical knowledge which should fit him admirably for the duties of the high office of Secretary of State.

He entered the political field as town clerk and later as representative in the New York Legislature.

In 1922 he was made Boxing Commissioner of New York State by Governor Alfred E. Smith.

As Chairman of the Democratic National Committee, Mr. Farley directed the Roosevelt campaign for nomination and election.

His home is at 3 East 84th Street, New York City.

HENRY AGARD WALLACE

Secretary of Agriculture

• HENRY AGARD WALLACE was born in Adair County, Iowa, October 7, 1888, the son of Henry C. and May Broadhead Wallace.

He is an expert farmer, though not a "dirt farmer." He is editor of "Wallace's Farmer," a farm paper founded by his grandfather.

Mr. Wallace's father was Secretary of Agriculture under the Harding administration. His plans for farm relief were frustrated by the White House influence of Herbert Hoover, then Secretary of Commerce. Secretary Wallace was a good Republican to the end of his days and died in office in 1924, his body lying in state in the East Room of the White House.

Young Wallace had his revenge at the last election when he helped to turn Iowa Democratic. He is said to be a radical and is one of the original sponsors of domestic allotment as a means of farm relief

On May 20, 1914, he married Ilo Brown, of Indianola, Iowa. They are the parents of the following children: Henry B., Robert B. and Jean B.

His home is at Des Moines, Iowa.

• HAROLD L. ICKES (pronounced Ick-us) was born in Blair County, Pennsylvania, March 15, 1874, the son of Jesse B. W. and Martha Ann McCune Ickes. He graduated from the University of Chicago in 1897—began the practice of law in 1907.

In 1911 he married Anna Wilmarth Thompson. They are the parents of the following children: Mrs. Requa Bryant, Wilmarth, Raymond and Robert.

In 1912 he became a rampant Bull Mooser, but in 1916 was behind Hughes, supported Cox in 1920, and in 1924 he managed Hiram Johnson's Illinois campaign for the Republican Presidential nomination.

Mr. Ickes likes to call himself a "lone wolf" in politics. His wife, Anna Wilmarth Thompson Ickes, was recently killed in an auto accident.

Mr. Ickes lives comfortably on a ten-acre estate at Winnetka, Illinois, where he is free to indulge his love for floriculture, his specialty being fine dahlias.

FRANCES PERKINS

Secretary of Labor

● FRANCES PERKINS (Wilson) was born in Boston, Massachusetts, April 10, 1882, the daughter of Frederick W. and Susan White Perkins. She graduated from Mount Holyoke College in 1902 and went to Lake Forest, Illinois, as a teacher. Her keen interest in working conditions and reform induced her to spend six months at Hull House. Later she did post-graduate work at Columbia College in New York City.

As a member of a safety committee, she went to Albany, lobbied through legislation for factory fire prevention.

In 1919 Governor Alfred Smith appointed Miss Perkins to the State Industrial Commission. Later, Governor Roosevelt took her into his state cabinet as Industrial Commissioner, the post from which she followed him into the federal cabinet.

In 1913, Miss Perkins married Paul C. Wilson, at that time secretary to the late John Purroy Mitchell, reform mayor of New York. They have one daughter. Mrs. Wilson has retained her maiden name only in order that her political activities might not embarrass her husband.

THE FEDERAL GOVERNMENT
SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

ITS FUNCTIONS AND OPERATIONS

Department of Justice

UNITED STATES ATTORNEY

• The office of the United States Attorney has jurisdiction of all civil and criminal cases, divided into ten classes, involving violations of the following Federal Statutes: Customs, Internal Revenue, Postal, Regulation of Commerce, Public Health and Safety, Banking and Finance, Liability and Insurance, Foreign Relations, Public and Indian Lands, not specially Classified.

Criminal. In criminal violations it is the duty of this office to prepare and handle cases before the United States Commissioners throughout the District, as well as to cooperate with outside agencies where fugitives from justice are apprehended in this District. This office also prepares cases for presentation to the Grand Jury, drawing indictments and preparing cases for trial and trying the same in the United States District Court.

Civil. In civil cases this office prepares the bills of complaint and libels of information, as well as try the cases when at issue.

This office also prosecutes appeals to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, Tenth Circuit, and to the Supreme Court of the United States.

Complete records—dockets—are maintained of all civil and criminal cases.

It is also the duty of this office to prepare and submit to the Attorney General of the United States, monthly reports of all new cases commenced, as well as reports of all docket entries made during the preceding month. A report is also furnished the Department at the end of each month of all fines collected in criminal cases. At the end of the fiscal year, June 30th, an Annual Report is compiled, involving all business, civil and criminal, transacted in the United States District Courts for the District of Southern California in cases in which the United States was a party.

This office also handles and prosecutes civil and criminal matters in connection with the emergency statutes in the same manner as the regular and more permanent statutes of the Government in this report referred to.

UNITED STATES MARSHAL

• The United States Marshall receives his commission from the President, but he works under the direction of the Attorney General who exercises supervision and direction over the marshals of the district of the United States. Accordingly, the Attorney General is the one to whom the marshal looks for instructions as to the discharge of his official duties, including the maintenance of books and records, the handling of Government and trust funds, and in the preparation of his accounts.

The idea seems to be prevalent that the work of the marshal is almost entirely of a criminal nature, but this is not the case, as it is the duty of the marshal, or his deputies, to serve all writs or papers in civil cases which are brought in the United States courts, and he also acts as the disbursing officer, in the payment of salaries, and expenses of the offices of the United States District Attorney, Clerk of the United States District Court, as well as the per diems and expenses of the jurors and witnesses who serve in the United States district court. From this it will be seen that the marshal is the executive officer of the Federal court, as well as the local disbursing officer of the court, and the Department of Justice. Under the United States statutes, he has the same powers in his district, executing the laws of the United States, as the sheriff has in his district, executing the laws of the State.

In addition thereto, and growing out of the foregoing the following are among the more important duties of marshal:

(a) To attend daily at their offices, unless otherwise engaged on official business, keep fully informed concerning all matters connected therewith, and to personally assist in the service of process, or the performance of clerical duties, if necessary.

(b) To keep in close touch with the Attorney General, concerning actual or anticipated defiance of Federal authority, or like disturbance, in which the Government might be concerned.

(c) To examine and approve all claims filed against the Government payable through his office, in order that erroneous charges which are not in accordance with the actual facts, and not considered a proper charge against the Government, may be detected and disapproved.

(d) To supervise the care and treatment of Federal prisoners in seeing that they are properly fed, clothed, that they receive necessary medical and dental attention. After conviction to see that they are safely transported to the institutions to which they are sentenced, and in case a Federal prisoner is apprehended in his district, who has been indicted in some other district, it becomes the duty of the marshal, under an order of removal issued out of the United States District Court, to see that the prisoner is removed to the district where the offense is alleged to have been committed, for trial.

INTERNAL REVENUE SERVICE

• The present Internal Revenue System had its origin in the Act of July 1, 1862. That law established the system for gathering the internal revenue taxes levied during the Civil War period. It was sweeping in its character. The objects of taxation designated by it were incomes, estates, public utilities, occupations of many kinds, liquors, tobacco, many other commodities, banks, insurance companies, and the law prescribing stamp taxes for various commercial papers, merchandise, etc.

There were 185 collection districts, the number being equal to the number of Congressional Districts in the States that had not seceded from the Union. This number was later increased until it reached 241 in 1868. Consolidations from time to time of these original districts reduced the number to our present 64 collection districts. In 1909 Congress enacted the corporation excise tax. On October 3, 1913, the first of our valid general income tax laws was enacted. This tax applied to both individual and corporations. The law became effective March 1, 1913. It superceded, so far as concerned corporations, the excise tax law of 1909.

Having established in 1913 the principle of taxing according to ability to pay, the nominal rates of the first income tax laws were expanded during 1917 and 1918, so as to produce revenue receipts that would have been inconceivable during the Civil War, when our present system of organization was originated.

First, there are sixty-four Collectors of Internal Revenue and their staffs; second, there are the thirty-eight Revenue Agents in Charge with their staffs, engaged in the verification of income tax returns; third, we have eight divisions of the Special Intelligence Unit; fourth, we have the Supervisors of Accounts and Collections; fifth, we have the special force of Revenue Agents employed upon miscellaneous tax determinations, serving under the general direction of the Accounts and Collections Unit; sixth, we have a field force comprised of representatives of the General Counsel's office, assigned to seven different geographical sections; and seventh, we have the field forces relating to the administration of the laws governing the manufacture and distribution of alcohol. Besides these seven distinct groups, we have revenue agents engaged upon the verification of estate taxes, who are nominally attached to the offices of the revenue agents in charge, but whose work is a part of the subject matter administered by the Miscellaneous Tax Unit.

The duties of the Bureau here in Washington are assigned to five major Units, namely: (1) the Commissioner and various agencies attached to his office; (2) Income Tax Unit, (3) Miscellaneous Tax Unit, (4) Accounts and Collections Unit, and (5) General Counsel's Office.

The first classification includes the immediate office of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue and his assistant, the office of the Special Deputy Commissioner, the Intelligence Unit, Appointment Division, Administrative Division, the Technical Staff and Public Relations Division.

The Income Tax Unit is the agency of the Bureau of Internal Revenue for administering the income and profits tax provision of the revenue laws.

The Miscellaneous Tax Unit is charged with the administration of the law in respect to all internal revenue taxes except income and profits taxes. The general classifications of tax under this Unit are estate tax, gift tax, tobacco tax, processing tax, excise tax, capital stock tax, admission and dues taxes, stamp taxes, special taxes, and internal revenue taxes relating to spirits and narcotics. This Unit is also responsible for the audit of returns and adjustments of cases arising under the miscellaneous tax laws.

The Accounts and Collections Unit is charged with the administration of matters having to do with the organization and management of the offices of Collectors of Internal Revenue, including their field forces; with the administrative audit of revenue and disbursing accounts of disbursing agents in the Internal Revenue Bureau and Service.

Every collector shall, from time to time, cause his deputies to proceed through every part of his district and inquire after and concerning all persons therein who are liable to pay any internal revenue tax, and all persons owning or having the care and management of any objects liable to pay any tax, and to make a list of such persons and enumerate said objects.

Section 2. The collector of Internal Revenue is under the general administrative direction of, and is responsible to, the Commissioner of Internal Revenue for the administration of the internal revenue service in his district; he shall administer all internal revenue laws and regulations, collect all internal taxes imposed by law within his district; aid in the prevention, detection, and punishment of frauds in relation thereto; account for and pay over to the United States all public moneys for which a collector is responsible under the law; act as disbursing agent of the Treasury for the payment of expenses of the collection of taxes and other expenditures for the internal revenue collection service within his district; select and appoint such employees as may be authorized by law, and so organize and direct the activities of the office and field forces of his has five principal divisions which will be employed to the best advantage to the service.

COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS

The Customs Bureau is a division of the Treasury Department, directed by the Commissioner of Customs at Washington, D. C.

There are forty-eight customs collection districts in the United States with a Collector of Customs stationed at the headquarters port of each district.

Enforces the tariff laws and regulations which pertain to the entity, appraisement and warehousing of imported merchandise, and the collection of duties thereon.

Determines the value and classification of such merchandise, including packages arriving by mail.

Weighing, gauging, measuring and sampling of imported merchandise, and ascertains the proof of imported wines, liquors and malt beverages.

Enforcement of laws for the detection and prevention of smuggling, and other frauds against the Customs Revenue, as well as the Copyright Laws, The Marking Laws, and the Antidumping Laws.

Enforces the laws under the jurisdiction of the Department of Agriculture, Department of Commerce, and Department of Labor, in cooperation with the Department of Justice, in so far as they relate to imported merchandise.

Directs the boarding and searching of vessels arriving from foreign ports. Details inspectors to supervise the unloading and inspection of merchandise and baggage imported by vessels or otherwise.

Directs the lading and forwarding of all goods entered for exportation under bond or for the benefit of drawback or allowance.

Handles the payment of drawback, disbursement and deposit of public moneys. Has custody of seized merchandise, and public property used for customs purposes.

Customs revenue is the second largest source of government income.

Post Office Department

• The office of the Postmaster gives him supervision over all postal business in his community, and over all rural routes emanating from the Main Office. He has direct supervision over the entire office force which varies with the size of his community and the volume of business transacted.

The Postmaster is the Custodian of the Federal Building and assigns the floor space to all other Governmental agencies and gives his attention to the care and proper cleaning of the building.

It is the duty of the postal inspectors to audit Postmaster's accounts, prevent depradations on mails, investigate all losses occurring through the mails, the wrongful payment of money orders, examine into all cases of the use of mail for fraudulent purposes, direct changes or consolidation of rural routes, inspect and report on condition of all post office buildings.

AND SAFEGUARDING THE FUTURE

Public Works Administration

Title 2 of the N.I.R.A. provided for a comprehensive program of Public Works on a Nation-wide scale. A central administration was set up in Washington with decentralized administrative officers in each State of the Union to Administer the Act locally.

Originally there was a State Advisory Board whose duty it was to acquaint all eligible parties with their rights and privileges under the act and to solicit said parties for applications for loans and grants. Such a flood of applications was received that no new applications were considered after February 28, 1934 and the State Advisory Boards were discontinued on that date.

The State Engineer and his staff then analyzed these applications. Their first duty was to see that all data requested by Washington was supplied by the Applicant. They then analyzed the applications to see if they were feasible from an engineering viewpoint, were socially desirable, economically sound and legal. Elaborate reports were then prepared and forwarded to Washington.

After these applications had been approved by Washington and the funds allocated for their construction, it became the duty of the State Engineer to see that the proper steps were taken to get the projects under construction. Help was given in the preparation and calling of bond elections if such were required. Also aid was given in the preparation of plans and specifications. These had to be approved by the State Engineer, P.W.A. before advertisement for bids could be published.

The State Engineer then supervised the opening of bids and awarding of contracts. After the projects were under way the work was turned over to the Inspection Division which sees to it that the projects are built in strict accordance with the plans and specifications and all of the provisions of the N.I.R.A. However, the State Engineer, P.W.A. retained entire authority regarding extra work orders, changes in the plans, or any other engineering question which might arise and it was his responsibility to see that a sound and efficient project was built.

In 1935, the P.W.A. program was continued under the provisions of the Federal Emergency Relief Appropriation Act and additional applications were accepted. The title of State Engineer was changed to State Director.

It must be borne in mind that the above activities refer to non-Federal projects, i. e., those projects initiated and constructed by such governmental bodies as State, counties, cities, towns and school districts, partly with loans from the Government and partly with Government grants of from 30 to 45 per cent of the cost.

Home Owners' Loan Corporation

Ed. Note: The Home Owners' Loan Corporation, one of the most successful and far-reaching activities of the present Administration, is pictured by Mr. Lewis W. Hunt, Southern California Division Manager, in the following article which deals with the accomplishments of this Government Agency and its policy of management and sale of acquired properties.

The Home Owners' Loan Corporation was called into existence in June, 1933, to meet a most serious crisis in real estate, created by the flood of foreclosures which was swamping home owners, mortgage institutions, and real estate values. Toward the middle of 1933, the foreclosure rate had increased to a total of more than 1,000 daily. Every foreclosure drove down property values and lowered values in turn caused more foreclosures. There were practically no buyers and mortgage credit disappeared. Many financing institutions with frozen real estate paper in their vaults were forced to close. Had the situation been allowed to grow worse distress must have spread to all large holders of real estate mortgages, such as savings banks and building and loan associations. A drastic remedy was unavoidable. The task was too great for any private agency. To protect the public, home owners, and private financing institutions alike, the Government set up the Home Owners' Loan Corporation to take over the mortgages of owners of urban homes who could not otherwise escape foreclosure. Congress provided the Corporation a capital of $200,000,000 and gave it authority to issue bonds in exchange for defaulted mortgages.

INDIVIDUALS, FINANCIAL INSTITUTIONS AND POLITICAL SUB-DIVISIONS BENEFITED

No one can question the soundness of purpose and the constructive good accomplished. The results of this far-reaching program have not been confined to the great army of home owners directly affected. At the same time invaluable relief was extended to thousands of financial institutions whose mortgage assets had become frozen. Likewise the activities of the Corporation had a stabilizing effect upon the real estate market. This has been accomplished by the refinancing of home loans which were in default and which financial institutions with large volumes of frozen assets were unable to carry longer and foreclosure was imminent. As a consequence hundreds of thousands of distressed properties were held off the market at a time when the real estate market, in general, was utterly demoralized. Not only the home owners and the real estate market have benefitted, but our whole financial situation generally has felt the stabilizing effect of this gigantic refunding program. The operaions of the Corporation not only saved over a million homes, but stopped the decline of home values at a vital time; protected the savings of people by extending financial aid to lending institutions and getting money into circulation.

With respect to the actual handling of its properties, it is the policy of the Corporation to dispose of, rent, and manage its properties through real estate brokers in all localities where satisfactory arrangements can be made and maintained for such facilities. Brokers selected to represent the Corporation are divided into three classifications, Contract Sales Brokers, Contract Management Brokers and Approved Sales Brokers. In each community where we have properties, one or more Contract Sales Broker is selected, and all negotiations for the sale of properties listed with brokers are conducted through the Contract Sales Broker. When a property is listed with a Contract Sales Broker, the listings of the property are also distributed to Approved Sales Brokers within a reasonably effective area of the property The Approved Sales Brokers thereafter conduct all negotiations regarding any such properties through the Contract Sales Broker, designated in the listings. The Contract Sales Broker acts for the Corporation in selling such properties as may be listed with him in accordance with the terms of the Sales Broker's Agreement. When sales are made by an Approved Sales Broker or an outside broker, the Contract Sales Broker is paid an over-ride commission of 2% for his services with a minimum of $25.00 per property. When a sale is made by the Contract Sales Broker's own organization, he receives a commission at the rate authorized by the Corporation, and no over-ride is paid. A broker may act in a dual capacity, provided his organization is qualified to act as both Sales and Management Broker.

LISTINGS MADE ONLY WITH CONTRACT MANAGEMENT BROKERS

Listings of all properties for rent or management are made only with Contract Management Brokers. The procedure established by the Corporation for the management of its properties is based on the same practice followed by insurance companies and large mortgage lending institutions. Red tape has been reduced to an absolute minimum. The procedure is direct, and the responsibility for the proper maintenance and management of the property rests with the Contract Management Broker. The broker is permitted, without higher authority, to spend as much as $25 per month on a single family and up to $50.00 per month on more than one unit properties, with a limit of $100 on emergency repairs. In the management of the property, he is not called upon to fill out any more forms or reports than large private institutions require.

BROKERS REPRESENTING CORPORATION COMPETENT AND QUALIFIED

The rate of compensation to brokers is determined by the Corporation. In establishing such schedules, the local Real Estate Board rates are used as guides and brokers may be assured that they will be paid a fair and reasonable compensation for their services.

The importance of a careful selection of brokers is recognized. Impartial selections have been made with a view of obtaining maximum results. Experience has proved that the brokers representing the Southern California Division are competent and qualified to represent the Corporation.

Before acquisition the property is appraised for the purpose of determining the fair market value. Also, an inspection is made to ascertain what repairs and reconditioning are necessary to place it in condi-

Although no more applications for loans are being accepted and its lending operations have been successfully completed, the Corporation recognizes its obligation to continue to be a stabilizing force in home ownership and in the real estate field generally. While it has completed the first period of its operations, it is now confronted with a more difficult obligation, the systematic liquidation of the mortgages which it holds.

Notwithstanding the considerate policy of the Corporation, it has been and will be necessary to acquire some properties. It is believed, however, that only a relatively small percentage of the total loans will result in foreclosure. In considering the number of foreclosures, we should view the picture as a whole. It should be kept in mind that almost all of the mortgages which were refinanced would have been foreclosed and that a very large percentage of the borrowers who will carry on with their Home Owners' Loan Corporation mortgages would have lost their homes and the savings represented if the Corporation had not been created.

LOANS EXTENDED ONLY TO DISTRESSED BORROWERS

As of April 1, after four years and eight months of operations, the Southern California Division had acquired 1600 properties, which represents four per cent of the 40,000 loans made in this area. This is an insignificant number when the picture is viewed as a whole in the light of the Corporation's activities, and indicates a remarkable showing on the part of its borrowers in view of the fact that all H.O.L.C. loans were "risks" taken on distressed borrowers threatened with foreclosure at the time the loans were made.

While the foreclosures and acquisitions to date have been remarkably few, when the total number of properties which the Corporation has been compelled to take over and may be expected to acquire is considered, the problem with which it is confronted is of large proportions.

With respect to the policy to be followed in the management and resale of acquired properties, the Corporation has announced that it does not propose to dump on the market the homes which it is obliged to take over. It would be a short-sighted policy to stimulate a new depression of real estate values by indulging in forced sale of properties.

PROPERTIES TO BE SOLD FOR FAIR VALUE

Properties are not offered for sale at less than fair value, nor will a greater number of properties be offered in a particular market than that market can absorb, having in mind not only our offerings but also those of other institutions in the community. In other words, the Corporation is not unmindful of the continued need of stabilization in the real estate market. When our analysis discloses that the market value of a property will be substantially increased in the future, it will not be placed on the market immediately, but will be held for rent until market conditions are more favorable and the property can be sold to the best advantage. When properties are held for rent, the rental asked will, wherever possible, be in an amount sufficient to produce a fair return on the present value of the property as determined by sound appraisal methods.

tion to invite sale or rental, and to compete favorably with typical properties within the immediate neighborhood. It is the Corporation's intention to place all of its properties in a clean, fresh, rentable and saleable condition. We want our merchandise to compete favorably with other similar merchandise.

The terms upon which the Corporation offers its properties are very liberal and add materially to their saleability. While some sales are made for all cash the large majority are made on a deferred payment plan. The amount of the down payment determines the terms to be granted the purchaser. If the cash down payment is 10% or more, the balance of the purchase price may be amortized in equal monthly installments over a period not exceeding fifteen years. The interest rate is five per cent.

A careful investigation is made as to credit standing, honesty, and ability to pay, of all proespective purchasers. When properties are sold, we want them to stay sold.

CORPORATION STRICTLY AN EMERGENCY AGENCY

The Corporation is strictly an emergency agency. It has completed its lending operations and is now in the process of liquidation. Its present activities involve making monthly collections of its loans, the management of properties taken over, their reconditioning where necessary, and their ultimate disposal. The law requires that these tasks must be completed and the Corporation's bonds redeemed by June 13, 1951. Because of the monthly payment plan and the repayment of loans in advance of maturity, the magnitude of its operations will decline steadily.

Most of the loans made by the Corporation are repayable to it over a period of fifteen years. There is a sufficient spread between the interest it pays for its outstanding bonds and the interest it receives on its mortgage loans to cover the cost of making and servicing the loans. Under favorable conditions, the existing spread should also be sufficient to absorb any losses the Corporation may sustain on properties it is compelled to acquire. If this anticipation is realized, the services of the Corporation to the nation at a critical juncture will have been furnished without cost to the taxpayer. The Corporation has confidence in the essential soundness of its plans and policies and believes that its influence on home financing practices in this country will long outlive its liquidation.

Federal Housing Administration

The Federal Housing Administration was created by the National Housing Act approved June 27, 1934. Its purpose is manifold:

(1) To expedite the recovery of the building and allied industries.

The Administration has utilized the methods made available in Titles I and II of the Act to promote the flow of private capital funds into the repair and modernization of existing properties and the construction of new homes, and certain other small structures, as well as insurance of farm loans under section 203-D of Title II.

(2) To aid and encourage private capital investments in the home mortgage field.

The National Housing Act, as amended, was designed to make available to financial institutions, the insured home mortgage.

(3) To secure a more uniform flow and a wider distribution of home-mortgage funds.

With the uniform mortgage instrument established under the National Housing Act as a basis accomplishment of this objective was greatly furthered by amending legislation, and by active cooperation of other Government agencies.

(4) To secure a lower and more uniform interest rate on home-mortgage securities.

In introducing a Nation-wide maximum interest rate on insured mortgages, the Administration has sought to reduce differences in rates explicable only on the basis of local custom and restricted mortgage markets. Home-mortgage funds may now be secured at an interest rate consistent with rates in the general money market and with the special considerations involved.

(5) To improve mortgage lending practice.

In an effort to improve mortgage-lending practice throughout the country, the Administration has emphasized: (a) standards of appraisal procedure; (b) improved methods of analyzing mortgage risk; and (c) encouragement of the use of long-term completely amortized mortgages.

(6) To raise building standards.

By means of establishing standards and an inspection service, the Administration has done much to promote adherence to good practice. This function will become of increasing importance whenever the current housing deficit develops into an acute housing shortgage. The grossest abuses occur at times when necessitous home seekers are forced to accept substandard homes, in the absence of anything better.

(7) To protect the owners of small homes.

The purchase of a home represents a serious major step for most families. That step must be safeguarded as far as possible in those transactions in which the Federal Housing Administration has a part. Hence, the single mortgage system is being administered so as to assure the fullest possible protection to persons buying, building, or refinancing the home which they occupy, or hold as landlord.

(8) To encourage creation of private limited dividend companies to finance housing developments for persons of low income.

Through its power to insure mortgages on large-scale housing projects the Administration aims to accomplish two main purposes. First, it encourages private capital to enter the field of housing on a large scale. Second, it establishes standards of planning and construction of large groups of dwellings far in advance of customary practice. Particular emphasis is given to the matter of community and neighborhood planning. Generally speaking, each project is large enough to constitute a new neighborhood of its own, or at least to effect very favorably an existing neighborhood.

(9) To develop essential statistical and economic data on real estate and housing.

The collection, presentation, and analysis of facts and figures similar to those gathered for agriculture and industry, but non-existent in the housing field, had to be provided for in accordance with the Act. A research staff, in cooperation with Government and private agencies in the field, is engaged in making such statistical and economic surveys as will be useful in guiding the development of housing and in the creation of a sound mortgage money market in the United States.

There are two Federal Housing Administration insuring offices in the State of California: the Northern California District office at 433 California Street in San Francisco, and the Southern California District office at 756 South Spring Street in Los Angeles.

Farm Security Administration

The Farm Security Administration is a branch of the U. S. Department of Agriculture and is dedicated to the rehabilitation of low-income farm families, under the provisions of the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenancy act and by methods set forth in that act. Headquarters for Region 9, which includes California, Utah, Arizona and Nevada, are at 85 Second street, San Francisco.

Regional officers are: Jonathan Garst, director; Ralph W. Hollenberg, assistant director in charge of rural rehabilitation; Dr. Omer Mills, economist; Rollin B. Moore, Farm Debt Adjustment specialist; Robert J. Graves, finance and control; Frederick R. Soule, information adviser; Fred A. Weller, attorney; William A. Anglim, community and cooperative services; Edward J. Rowell, labor relations; Mrs. Helen I. Stebbins, home management.

Rehabilitation of low-income farm families is being accomplished primarily through loans and debt adjustment. The FSA makes small loans to farm families who cannot get credit from any other source, to enable them to buy the tools, livestock, seed and other equipment necessary to carry on farming operations. In some cases it also advances them money to buy food and clothing until they can make their first crop. The Farm Security Administration's county supervisor helps each family to work out a careful plan of farm operations, including a home management plan, so it will get the best possible use out of the money it borrows. The loans are for periods of one to five years at five per cent interest.

LOCAL COMMITTEES UNDERTAKE ADJUSTMENTS BETWEEN CREDITOR AND DEBTOR

Since Farm Security Administration loan applicants are often in debt beyond their ability to pay, it sometimes becomes necessary for them to take advantage of the Farm Debt Adjustment service. County committees made up of neighbors—farmers, doctors, lawyers and business men—who are known for their fairness and good judgment, undertake to work out voluntary adjustments between creditor and debtor. This may be accomplished through a reduction of the principal, extension of the loan, a lesser interest rate, or in some other way satisfactory to both parties.

Very often a low-income farm family is threatened with failure because of inability to purchase certain farm equipment. In such instances the Farm Security Administration through its Community Services division makes loans for purchase of equipment. The loan is made to a small group of farmers whose neighbors have agreed to use the equipment on a fee basis. By this cooperative pooling of resources small farmers, unable themselves to finance the purchase of equipment or purebred stock, have been enabled to modernize their farming methods and improve their herds.

The success of the rehabilitation program in California is becoming more and more evident. A total of 1084 low income farm families had borrowed $684,440 up to May 15, and the high percentage of repayments is believed to indicate that the small farmer is gradually climbing back to a position of security and normal living standards.

In support of the Farm Security Administration rehabilitation program in California, more than 1000 farm debt cases have been adjusted, resulting in debt reductions totaling $771,640. The adjustments resulted in the payment of $44,000 in back taxes. Seventy-three community service loans involving $65,000 have been made in California.

Statistics, of course, do not reflect the far-reaching results of the rehabilitation program. Each loan means that a family of five has benefitted. In many cases it has meant release from relief for the head of the family and full-time pursuit of farming activities. Merchants and the communities at large share the benefits through increased purchasing and tax-paying ability.

In addition to the low-income farmer located on his own land, or land held under lease, there is a still larger agricultural group whose welfare comes under the jurisdiction of the Farm Security Administration. California is more and more becoming a state of industrialized agriculture. The crops are harvested by thousands of migrant workers who move from area to area, and whose standards of living necessarily are far below the normal American standard. Many of these workers are farmers who have been "blown out" or "tractored out" of other states and who, through economic necessity, are obliged to seek employment as farm laborers.

MEMBERS OF THE FARM SECURITY ADVISTORY COMMITTEE FOR CALIFORNIA

While farm tenancy, in the ordinary sense, is less of a problem in California than in some of the other states, an attack on the problem has been started. San Joaquin and San Bernardino are the two counties in this state, selected among 300 in the nation, for making loans to farm tenants for the purchase of farms. Out of the limited funds available for the fiscal year 1937-38, six loans were made in San Joaquin County and six in San Bernardino. The Bankhead-Jones act authorizes a large amount, nationally, for tenant purchase loans during the current fiscal year and the one following, and it is reasonable to except that California's porportionate share will be larger, but in any event in relation to the size of the national tenancy problem, this program can only be considered at present as a long-range approach to ultimate correction. Members of the Farm Security Advisory Committee for California are: William Darcie, Walnut Grove, chairman; Prof. B. H. Crocheron, Berkeley, director of Extension Service, University of California College of Agriculture; Julian A. McPhee, chief of the State Bureau of Agricultural Education and director of the California State Polytechnic College at San Louis Obispo; Edwin Jobe, Covina, citrus fruit grower, member of the Farm Bureau Federation and California Fruit Growers Exchange; M. R. Fuller, Merced, long active in operation of diversified farms in the Northern San Joaquin Valley, member of the california Grange and leader in rural and urban affairs in Merced county; Eugene L. Shackleton, Stockton, former Kansas farmer and San Joaquin county teacher, lately interested in workers' education, conducting courses under the WPA; Paul C. Smith, editor and journalist, general manager of the San Francisco Chronicle, served on the President's Farm Tenancy Committee, which prepared a report to assist Congress in its consideration of the Bankhead-Jones legislation; F. G. Hamblin, migratory agricultural worker, without permanent address because he "follows the crops" for a living, formerly of Nebraska; Mrs. Eleanor Banning McFarlane, Los Angeles, of the pioneer landowning family after which the city of Banning, Riverside county, is named.

For the benefit of the migrant families the Farm Security Administration inaugurated a Labor Camp Program and now operates seven model camps in California. They provide sanitary facilities, good water, health supervision and other advantages for 1200 families. The present camps are at Brawley, Indio, Shafter, Arvin, Winters, Marysville and Gridley. Three more are to be established, at Westley, Visalia and Windsor.

Seeking to help "anchor" farm families who sought a foothold on the land, the Farm Security Administration built 20 low-rental homes adjoining the Arvin labor camp. These homes each have three-quarters of an acre of land. The rent is $8.20 per month. Eighty more low-rental homes are under construction, 40 at Indio and 40 at Shafter.

1938 FLOODS NECESSITATED EMERGENCY GRANTS

Early in 1938, floods in the San Joaquin Valley, coupled with scarcity of work and an unusually large labor surplus, made it necessary to inaugurate an emergency grant program for the benefit of non-resident families. Cash grants averaging $24 for a 30-day period have been made to destitute families. By June 1, about 20,000 grants had been made and the current grant load was 5788 families. In addition, commodity stations have been established at strategic points as an emergency service for families requiring food immediately.

The economic condition of the migratory agricultural workers is such that but few of them can afford adequate medical services. This problem has aggravated the agricultural areas for many years. Due to the conditions previously mentioned, the situation this year becomes so grave as to demand immediate action.

As a solution to the problem the Farm Security Administration, in cooperation with the California Medical Association, the State Board of Health and the State Relief Administration, organized the Agricultural Workers Health and Medical Association, a cooperative non-profit organization set up under state laws. With headquarters offices in Fresno and district offices functioning in that city and other agricultural centers, the problem now appears to have been solved for the first time. Non-resident agricultural workers in need of medical services are referred to physicians who have volunteered to serve on the association's panel. Hospitals and pharmacies have agreed to cooperate in the plan. Bills are paid by the association. A preliminary fund of $100,000 was provided by the Farm Security Administration.

Farm Credit Administration

The objects of the Farm Credit Administration, established by Executive Order of President Roosevelt, on May 27, 1933, are two-fold: First, to prevent the then imminent bankruptcy of agriculture throughout the United States by the granting, on easy terms, of long-term mortgages on farm property. Second, to build up a permanent cooperative credit system for agriculture whereby the country's financial markets could be brought to the door of the farmer as, in the past, they have been available for industry and commerce.

The first of these two objects was the more pressing one. When, following President Roosevelt's Executive Order, Congress passed in May, 1933, the Emergency Farm Mortgage Act, hundreds of thousands of agriculturists throughout the United States were facing imminent foreclosure because of their inability to refinance their pressing debts. At that time funds of commercial banks available for lending had declined from 71 billion to 52 billion—more than one-fourth. In some farming districts loans and discounts had declined 70% under the figure of 1928. Farmers everywhere were being forced to sell or mortgage basic security—their very land—to meet ordinary costs of production and keep their families alive.

SITUATION REQUIRED NEW FARM CREDIT STRUCTURE

That was the situation which prompted the immediate remedial measures on the part of the newly established Farm Credit Administration.

Prior to the establishment of the Farm Credit Administration there had been no less than five government-owned or government-controlled agencies designed to assist the farmer in meeting his credit needs. Some of these were of an emergency nature, hastily set up with the purpose of plugging the hole in the dike.

In the creation of the Farm Credit Administration, two of these formerly existing agencies were retained as part of the permanent structure; these were the twelve federal land banks established by the Farm Mortgage Act in 1917 and twelve intermediate credit banks brought into being by Act of Congress in 1923. To these were added two new agencies; twelve production credit corporations and twelve regional banks for cooperatives, with an additional central bank for cooperatives established at Washington.

Regional Agricultural Credit Corporations, which had been established under the Hoover Administration as an emergency measure to bring credit to livestock men and farmers, and the Seed and Feed Loans, which had also been in existence before the Farm Credit Administration was established, pending orderly liquidation.

In distinction from prior practice, the Farm Credit Administration was not set up under a board or as a subsidiary of any existing department of the government. It has at its head a Governor who is responsible solely to the President of the United States. Henry Morgenthau, Jr., now Secretary of the Treasury of the United States, was the first man to fill this office; his successor is William I. Myers. Under the Governor are two deputy governors and four commissioners—one each placed in charge of division of land banks, intermediate credit banks, production credit corporations and banks for cooperatives. Using the existing land banks as nuclei, the Farm Credit Administration is divided into twelve districts—one centering upon each land bank. There are, therefore, in the eleventh district embracing California, Nevada, Utah and Arizona, the following organizations: the Federal Land Bank, the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank, the Production Credit Corporation and the Bank for Cooperatives.

Works Progress Administration

The Works Progress Administration was created solely for the purpose of caring for the destitute. It has but one function; that is to provide the necessities of life to those who, by virtue of unemployment or other circumstances beyond their own individual control, are unable to find for themselves food, shelter, and other fundamental requirements of our people.

The creation of the Works Progress Administration became necessary when, as a result of the after effects of the depression, states, counties, and municipalities, together with the private charitable agencies, were taxed beyond their capacity to take care of the unfortunate. When state, county, municipal, and private charity could no longer take care of the unfortunate caught in the maelstrom of economic distress, the Congress created what we now know as emergency relief, at President Roosevelt's urging.

There is but one order imposed upon the administration of relief; that is to provide people in distress with what they must have in order to live. The problem today is not one of chronic unemployable persons, the social misfit, the criminal, or the beggar; it is the problem of caring for the normally self-respecting person who has been thrown out of his profession or his trade or his business, as a result of economic misfortune. That person, invariably, infinitely prefers an honorable means of caring for himself and his family through his own exertion, to any dole. People want to work; and they want to work in the trades or the fields for which they have been trained and to which they are accustomed, but until employment is made possible for them through the resumption of business, and through the stimulation of enterprise in any number of ways, the federal government has asumed the largest share of the burden of the care of these people.

CITIZENS NEED ONLY TO APPLY FOR RELIEF

The citizen, finding himself without any means of support, has only to apply to the nearest county relief administration or its agent, state his case, make a proper financial statement, submit to the necessary investigation, and be given his requirements. The financial statement is asked of all applicants for the very simple reason that the relief administration must safeguard the funds entrusted to its care.

The operation is simple. At the head of the organization in California is the state director, and under his immediate supervision are the employees of the state office. From the state office, authority is given to county administrations in every county of the state to take care of the particular requirements of that locality.

The fellowship of California citizens has been manifested from two sides of the problem. First, those who have been stricken through no fault of their own, have shown indomitable courage and high enterprise in the face of disheartening circumstances. Second, those who have been fortunate enough to retain employment, and to maintain their economic independence, have demonstrated their sympathy and their earnest desire to help those less fortunate. In all of the counties, there are serving committees of public-spirited men and women, who preside over the administration of relief in their jurisdiction, without compensation of any kind, performing a service and a community duty only because they want to help their friends and neighbors.

PEOPLE WILL NOT SUFFER FOR WANT

We all home—those of us in the administration of relief, those who by virtue of stern necessity are compelled to be its beneficiaries, the tax payers who must eventually foot the bill, and the interested citizenry—hope most earnestly that the emergency will end. The sooner it ends the better it will be for all of us. Meanwhile, however, with the help of the federal government, the state, county, and other political subdivisions, we intend to carry on, and see that people do not suffer from want, that all are treated in an equitable, fair, and decent manner. The relief administration has only human agencies with which to work, only human people with whom to deal. Recognizing human frailty, we can only ask that the people whom we are serving, and the people who are interested in the program and are attempting to help us, let us know of the short-comings they may find in the way these relief affairs are handled.

National Reemployment Service

The following are included in the purposes of the National Reemployment Service:

1. The Reemployment Service supplies labor for all public works projects that are financed in whole or in part through the National Industrial Recovery Act. All public administrators of other funds and public officials in general are invited to use this service in securing whatever employees they need. The Reemployment Service has no enforcement duties in connection with public works but confines its energies to the placement of workers.

2. The Reemployment Service seeks to register and occupationally classify all unemployed. To this end, all unemployed are invited to apply for work at the Reemployment offices, where they are registered and occupationally classified according to training, experience and ability.

3. The Reemployment Service seeks to gather accute and continuous statistical data on the employment situation. This involves the collection and tabulation of data on the unemployed and on work openings and placements. The information that is secured in this way is available to public officials and others upon request. This data should be of value in public planning, and, after sufficient time has elapsed, is expected to reveal the seasonal fluctuations in employment and industrial and occupational trends, along with other information of business and social value. The Reemployment Service is affiliated with the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics.

4. The Reemployment Service seeks to assist private employers and workers in solving their employment problems by providing an efficient means of coordinating workers with jobs throughout the state and nation. All persons who are looking for work are invited to register at the nearest office of the service where they are interviewed and classified. The interviewers provide information on the employment situation and offer vocational counsel and advice. They seek to place the workers according to their abilities and skill in whatever jobs are available.

With the close of the CWA program in March, 1934, the Reemployment Service turned its attention to the placement of workers with private employers. All employers, whether public or private in nature, who offer legitimate employment opportunities are invited to make use of the facilities of this agency in securing workers to satisfy their labor needs. The service seeks to contact employers at regular intervals to learn of these needs and to keep in touch with changes in the labor market. The service refers workers to employers solely on a basis of qualification for the job; and when qualified workers are not available locally, state and national clearance of workers is provided for through the state and national organization of the service. Lists of all skilled workers who are available in Southern California in construction lines are compiled by the service on a weekly basis to facilitate the clearance of workers throughout this state and with surrounding states. These skilled labor lists will be extended into other vocations as soon as the demand justifies such an extension.

The Reemployment Service does not create employment, but seeks to stimulate employment by efficiently coordinating all workers with all work opportunities.

The National Labor Relations Board

The National Labor Relations Board was authorized by the National Labor Relations Act. The members of the Board, appointed by the President in August, 1935, divided the country in 21 (now 22) regions. The 21st Region includes Southern California and Arizona.

The National Labor Relations Act, designed to decrease industrial disputes and to equalize bargaining power between employers and employees, contains two major provisions. One provision is the guarantee to workers of their rights to organize and to bargain collectively with their employer. To insure these rights, the Act declares it an unfair labor practice for an employer to interfere with, restrain, or coerce employees in the exercise of their guaranteed rights. It is also unfair labor practice for an employer to discriminate against an employee for his union activity—or in an attempt to dissuade him from joining a union. Employers must not refuse to bargain with the duly chosen representatives of his employees.

REPRESENTATIVES OF MAJORITY TO REPRESENT ALL

The law also says that the representatives chosen by the majority of the employees shall have the right to represent all the employees.

The second major provision of the Act provides that if there is a dispute between a union and an employer as to whether or not the union represents the majority of the employees, or if two unions claim to represent the same employees, the Board may be petitioned by the unions to investigate and to certify the representatives chosen by the majority of the employees. Sometimes this investigation involves a secret vote among the employees.

The Regional offices each have a staff consisting of a regional director, attorneys, field examiners and clerical help. The regional director is the administrative head of the office under the supervision of the Administrative Division of the Board in Washington. He is also in charge of labor relations, investigating charges of commission of unfair labor practices, and petitions for certification of representatives, attempting to secure compliance with the law without formal procedure, issuing or refusing to issue complaints, setting dates for hearings, and arranging for the holding of hearings and holding elections as agent of the Board.

BOARD LIMITED IN ITS JURISDICTION

The Board does not have blanket jurisdiction over all employees, its activities being confined to preventing unfair labor practices affecting commerce. Consequently, when a charge or petition is filed, the director has a two-fold duty: he must investigate the merits of the case, and also the interstate commerce aspects in order to determine jurisdiction. Among the more important duties of a regional office is that of obtaining compliance with the law. Speaking nationally, the regional offices have secured compliance in more than 60% of the cases settled. Since October 1, 1935, when the 21st Region started taking charges and petitions (to May 1, 1938) there have been filed 690 charges and 560 petitions, or a total of 1250 cases. Of this number, about 11% have gone to formal hearing, 42% have been adjusted without formal action, 18% have been withdrawn, 15% dismissed, and 14% are pending.

Of the charges brought in, those alleging discriminatory discharge predominate, with refusals to bargain a close second.

Encouraging features of the work of the 21st Region are: (1) many strikes have been arrested or settled, (2) employers are beginning to recognize employees' rights and are beginning collective negotiations, with (3) a resulting understanding of mutual problems and a sympathetic desire to reach an amicable settlement.

Department of the Interior

DIVISION OF GRAZING

The Taylor Grazing Act of June 28, 1934 (48 Stat. 1269) was enacted to stop injury to the public grazing lands by preventing overgrazing and soil deterioration; to provide for their orderly use, improvement and development; to stabilize the livestock industry dependent upon the public ranges, and for other purposes.

There are five ways provided for the disposal of public lands under the Taylor Act: Exchange, Sale, Lease, Grazing district allotment and Homestead entries.

Exchanges involving state lands, railroad lands, private lands, etc., are provided for.

Sale of isolated tracts is authorized up to 760 acres.

Public domain in tracts of 640 acres or more may be leased.

Provision is made for grazing districts wherein grazing rights would be allotted to groups or individuals under rules and regulations pertaining to the proper use of the range.

This latter provision has met with the most popular favor, and the western stockmen in ten public land states have voted to include nearly 90% of the remaining public domain in fifty grazing districts. These grazing districts contain from 100,000 to 5,000,000 or 6,000,000 acres of public domain each.

The administrative plan includes a setup of authority divided between elected representatives of the livestock industry and representatives of the Grazing Service. In each district there will be elected a committee of stockmen who will be determined according to the needs of the particular district. A member of the Grazing Service of the Department of the Interior would serve as an advisory member of the committee.

Recommendations for rules and regulations, proper use, fair range practices, and other matters, will be made to the Division of Grazing by the district advisory committee, and when approved by the Director and the Secretary of the Interior would put into effect governing the particular district.

At the present time the 10 western states are divided into districts as follows.

Arizona, 5; California, 2; Colorado, 5; Idaho, 3; Utah, 8; Montana, 5; Nevada, 5; Wyoming, 5; New Mexico, 6; Oregon, 6

However, with the present 80,000,000 acre limitation in effect there are only contemplated some 32 districts.

There is a total area of almost 717,000,000 acres of land in the 10 public land states of Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Montana, New Mexico, Oregon, Utah and Wyoming. Of this total area approximately 161,000,000 acres are unreserved public domain; almost 49,000,000 are reserved public domain; there are almost 123,000,000 in Forest Reserves; and state, railroad and private lands total 381,000,000 acres.

There is a rural population in these same states of a little more than 3,000,000 that operate over 390,000 ranch units. The area supports more than 10,000,000 cattle, or 15% of all the cattle in the United States; over 25,000,000 sheep, or 49.5% of all the sheep in the United States; over 1,600,000 horses or 13.8% of all the horses in the United States, making a total of 26.1% of all the livestock in the United States. This livestock has a value of almost $157,000,000, while the ranch lands and buildings have a value of more than $6,000,000,000.

The plan of control of this vast area through advisory committees is unique in its inception and contemplates leaving with the stockmen largely the responsibility of control of public domain pastures which belong to all of the people.

It is not the intention that any huge bureau be organized to exercise control of the public domain. There will be a small, efficient organization of men well qualified in western livestock affairs, carrying capacities of the range, and other public land matters in the western states who will work with the stockmen in handling their problems on the public domain.

Public Act No. 433 repealing the Kerr Tobacco Act, the Bankhead Cotton Act of 1934, and the Potato Act of 1935; Public Act No. 461, approved February 29, 1936; Public Resolution No. 76, approved March 14, 1936; Public Resolution No. 109, approved June 19, 1936; Public Resolution No. 131, approved June 24, 1936; Public Act No. 802, approved June 25, 1936.

PURPOSE—As originally established the Agricultural Adjustment Administration was organized in the Department of Agriculture to promote economic recovery by restoring the purchasing power of the American farmer to the level it occupied during the 5-year period preceding the World War. Since the passage of the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act, approved February 29, 1936, the Agricultural Adjustment Administration is charged with its administration. Objectives of this act include the preservation and improvement of soil fertility, promotion of economic use and conservation of land, diminution of exploitation and wasteful and unscientific use of national soil resources, protection of rivers and harbors against the results of soil erosion, and reestablishment of the ratio of the purchasing power of the net income per person on farms and that of the income per person not on farms, which prevailed during the 5-year pre-war period, and the maintenance of this ratio. Payments are made to cooperating farmers for the planting of soil-conserving and soil-rebuilding crops in lieu of soil-deteriorating crops.

INFORMATION—For further information communicate with the Administrator of Agriculture Adjustment, South Building of Agriculture, Independence Avenue at Fourteenth Street SW., Washington, D. C. Telephone, DIstrict 6350.

HOWARD R. TOLLEY,
Administrator.

ELECTRIC HOME AND FARM AUTHORITY

AUTHORITY—Public Act No. 67, approved June 16, 1933; Executive Order No. 6514, dated December 19, 1933; Executive Order No. 7139, August 12, 1935, and Executive Order No. 7150, August 19, 1935. Incorporated under the laws of the District of Columbia August 1, 1935. Public Act No. 484, approved March 31, 1936.

PURPOSE—It is the purpose of the Electric Home and Farm Authority to aid in the distribution, sale, and installation of electric apparatus, equipment, and appliances (together with plumbing and other equipment and appliances operated by or in connection with electricity), in such a manner as to make practicable the use of high quality, low-cost time- and labor-saving electrical equipment in homes and on farms. This purpose is accomplished through the credit facilities it makes available to finance the consumer purchase of electrical appliances, and through cooperation with publicly and privately owned utilities, manufacturers, and dealers to facilitate the use of electrical equipment on a sound and economical basis. The Authority does not sell equipment but finances, through regular dealers, the purchase by consumers of such electrical appliances as ranges, refrigerators, water heaters, pumps, and washing machines.

INFORMATION—For further information communicate with the President of the Electric Home and Farm Authority, Tower Building, Fourteenth and K Streets NW., Washington, D. C. Telephone, District 0145.

FARM CREDIT ADMINISTRATION

AUTHORITY—Federal Farm Loan Act, approved July 17, 1916, Agricultural Marketing Act, approved June 15, 1929, and amendments; Section 201 (e) of the Emergency Relief and Construction Act of 1932, approved July 21, 1932, Public Act No. 302; Executive Order No. 6084, dated March 27, 1933; Public Act No. 10, Seventy-third Congress, approved May 12, 1933; Public Act No. 75, Seventy-third Congress, approved June 16, 1933; Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation Act, approved January 31, 1934; Public Act No. 11, Seventy-fourth Congress, approved February 20, 1935; Public Act No. 87, Seventy-fourth Congress, approved June 3, 1935. Executive Order No. 7126, August 5, 1935; Public Act No. 644, approved June 4, 1936, and Public Act No. 792, approved June 24, 1936.

PURPOSE—The general purpose of the Farm Credit Administration system is to provide a complete and coordinated credit system for agriculture by making available to farmers long-term and short-term credit. It also provides credit facilities for farmers' cooperative purchasing and marketing organizations. The system includes the 12 Federal land banks, making long-term first mortgage loans to farmers; the 12 Federal intermediate credit banks, which discount short-term agricultural and livestock paper, make loans on the security of such paper, and make direct loans to cooperative marketing and purchasing associations; the 12 production credit corporations, which supervise and furnish a part of the capital for local production credit associations providing short-term credit for production and general agricultural purposes; a central bank for cooperatives and 12 district banks for cooperatives, which provide credit for farmers' cooperative purchasing and marketing organizations; and the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation, which aids in financing the lending operations of the Federal land banks. Joint stock land banks were a part of the original land bank system, but the Emergency Farm Mortgage Act of 1933 (Public, No. 10, 73rd Cong.), approved May 12, 1933, withdrew their authority to make additional mortgage loans. The 12 regional agricultural credit corporations (established by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and now being liquidated), as well as the feed and seed loan activities of the Department of Agriculture, also were placed under the supervision of the Farm Credit Administration when consolidation of the system was effected on May 27, 1933, by Executive Order No. 6084.

BANKS FOR COOPERATIVES
(Farm Credit Administration)

AUTHORITY—Public Act No. 75 (Sec. 30, Title III, and Sec. 40, Title IV), Seventy-third Congress, approved June 16, 1933.

PURPOSE—Banks for Cooperatives are organized to make loans to national, regional, and local farmers' cooperative associations. These include commodity loans, operating capital loans, effective merchandising loans, and physical facility loans. Commodity loans are made for the purpose of financing the handling of readily marketable commodities and must be secured by such commodities. Operating loans and effective merchandising loans (including commodity loans) are made to assist the cooperative associations in the effective merchandising of agricultural commodities and food products thereof and the financing of the operations of the cooperatives, including farmers' farm supply cooperatives. Physical facility loans are made for the construction or acquisition by purchase or lease (or for refinancing the cost of construction or acquisition) of physical facilities for preparing, handling, storing, processing, or merchandising agricultural commodities or their food products, or farm supplies.

INFORMATION—For further information communicate with the Cooperative Bank Commissioner, 1300 E Street NW., Washington, D. C. Telephone DIstrict 1050.

EMERGENCY CROP AND FEED LOANS

(Farm Credit Administration)

AUTHORITY—Public Act No. 2, Seventy-second Congress, approved January 22, 1932; Public Act No. 97, approved February 23, 1934; Emergency Appropriation Act, fiscal year 1935 (Public Act No. 412, approved June 19, 1934); Executive Order No. 6084, dated March 27, 1933; Executive Order No. 6747, dated June 23, 1934; Public Resolution No. 11, Seventy-fourth Congress, approved February 20, 1935; Public Act No. 21, Seventy-fourth Congress, approved March 21, 1935; Executive Order No. 7305; February 28, 1936.

PURPOSE—An executive Order of February 28, 1936 (No. 7305), authorizes the Governor of the Farm Credit Administration to make loans to farmers during 1936, from a $30,000,000 allocation from the Emergency Relief Appropriation Act of 1935 (Public Resolution No. 11, 74th Cong.), for the production and harvesting of crops and feed for livestock. Emergency crop and feed loans are made only to applicants who are unable to obtain credit from other sources. If a farmer applicant has adequate security, he is eligible to receive credit for production purposes from local production credit associations created under the Farm Credit Act of 1933.

FEDERAL FARM MORTGAGE CORPORATION
(Farm Credit Administration)

AUTHORITY—Public Act No. 88, Seventy-third Congress, approved January 31, 1934; Public Act No. 87, Seventy-fourth Congress, approved June 3, 1935. Executive Order No. 7126, August 5, 1935.

PURPOSE—The chief function of the Corporation is to aid in financing the lending operations of the Federal land banks and the Land Bank Commissioner, particularly the farm debt refinancing program begun in the spring of 1933. To do this, the Corporation is authorized to issue and have outstanding at any one time a total of not more than $2,000,000,000 in bonds. The payment of principal and interest on bonds of the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation is fully and unconditionally guaranteed by the Government and, in addition, the bonds are as readily marketable as United States Government bonds. They are lawful security for 15-day borrowing by member banks of the Federal Reserve System and are lawful investments (and may be accepted as security) for all fiduciary, trust, and public funds of which the deposit or investment is under authority or control of the Government.

INFORMATION—For further information communicate with the Governor of the Farm Credit Administration, 1300 E Street NW., Washington, D. C. Telephone, DIstrict 1050.

FEDERAL INTERMEDIATE CREDIT BANKS
(Farm Credit Administration)

AUTHORITY — Agricultural Credits Act of 1923, Public Act No. 503, Sixty-seventh Congress, approved March 4, 1923 (42 Stat. 1454), Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation Act, approved January 31, 1934, Public Act No. 88, Seventy-third Congress, Farm Credit Act of 1933, approved June 16, 1933, Public Act No. 75, Seventy-third Congress.

PURPOSE—The Federal intermediate credit banks were organized to make loans to and discount paper for production credit associations, the banks for cooperatives, state and national banks, agricultural credit corporations, livestock companies, and similar financing institutions. They also make loans to cooperative associations of agricultural producers. They are not authorized to make loans directly to individual farmers and stockmen, but operate as banks of discount for institutions making such loans for agricultural purposes. To be eligible for discount or as collateral for a loan to a financing institution, the proceeds of notes offered to the intermediate credit banks must have been advanced or used in the first instance for an agricultural purpose, or for the raising breeding, fattening, or marketing of livestock.

INFORMATION—For further information communicate with the Intermediate Credit Commissioner, 1300 E Street NW., Washington, D. C. Telephone, DIstrict 1050.

FEDERAL LAND BANKS
(Farm Credit Administration)

AUTHORITY—Federal Farm Loan Act, approved July 17, 1916 (Public Act No. 158, 64th Cong.); liberalized by Emergency Farm Mortgage Act of May 12, 1933 (Sec. 42, Part 8, Public Act No. 10, 73d Cong.); Farm Credit Act of 1933, approved June 16, 1933; Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation Act, approved January 31, 1934; Farm Credit Act of 1935, approved June 5, 1935.

PURPOSE—The purpose of Federal land banks is to make long-term loans on first mortgages on farm lands. Individuals who receive such loans, giving a first mortgage on their farms as security, must agree to repay them in annual or semi-annual installments. Corporations engaged in raising livestock also are eligible to borrow, under certain limitations. Loans are made for not less than $100 and not more than $50,000 to any one borrower. Application should be made to the secretary-treasurer of the national farm loan association in the community where the farm to be mortgaged is located.

PRODUCTION CREDIT CORPORATIONS AND ASSOCIATIONS
(Farm Credit Administration)

AUTHORITY—Public Act No. 75, Seventy-third Congress, approved June 16, 1933, amended by Sections 11, 13, 14, and 15 of Public Act No. 88, Seventy-third Congress, approved January 31, 1934.

PURPOSE—Production credit associations were organized and chartered under the Farm Credit Act of 1933, through combined action with the Federal intermediate credit bank in each land bank district, to form a permanent system to provide short-term credit for general agricultural purposes, including loans for the production of crops, for the breeding, raising, and fattening of livestock, for the alteration, repair, and improvement of farm equipment and buildings, and for refinancing indebtedness incurred in the first instance for agricultural purposes. In each district, production credit corporations have assisted in the organization of associations, providing most of their capital through subscriptions to their class A stock. The farmer must submit his application for a loan to his local production credit association or an authorized representative.

INFORMATION—For further information communicate with the Production Credit Commissioner, 1300 E Street NW., Washington, D. C. Telephone DIstrict 1050.

FEDERAL HOME LOAN BANK BOARD

AUTHORITY—Public Act No. 304, Seventy-second Congress, approved July 22, 1932; also the following acts of the Seventy-third Congress: Public Act No 43, approved June 13, 1933; Public Act No. 178, April 27, 1934; Public Act No. 479, June 27, 1934; Public Act No. 76, Seventy-fourth Congress, approved May 28, 1935. Executive Order No. 7126, August 5, 1935.

PURPOSE—The Federal Home Loan Bank Board supervises and controls the following four distinct agencies created to improve home-financing conditions; Federal Home Loan Bank System, Home Owners' Loan Corporation, Savings and Loan Division, and Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation. The Board has the power to adopt, amend, and require the observance of such rules, regulations, and orders as shall be necessary from time to time for carrying out the purpose and provisions of the Home Owners' Loan Act of 1933 and the Federal Home Loan Bank Act, both of which were designed to provide emergency relief with respect to home mortgage indebtedness, to refinance home mortgages, and otherwise assist the owners of homes to amortize their debts. The Federal Home Loan Bank System serves as a credit reserve for Federal savings and loan associations, building and loan associations, savings and loan associations, cooperative banks, insurance companies, savings banks, and other home - financing institutions. Federal home-loan banks do not grant loans to individuals. Public Act No. 76 created the Advisory Council of the Federal Home Loan Bank System, to consist of one member for each Federal home loan bank district to be elected annually by the Board of Directors of the Federal home loan bank of the district, and six members to be appointed annually by the Board.

(Federal Home Loan Bank Board)

AUTHORITY — Public Act No. 43, Seventy-third Congress, approved June 13, 1933; Public Act No. 178, Seventy-third Congress, approved April 27, 1934; National Housing Act, approved June 27, 1934; Public Act No. 76, Seventy-fourth Congress, approved May 28, 1935. Executive Order No. 7126, August 5, 1935.

PURPOSE — This Corporation terminated its activities in closing loans on June 13, 1936, a date set by law, and now serves as the collection agency for loans already outstanding, all of which must be liquidated within 15 years from that date. The general purpose of the Home Owners' Loan Corporation was to grant long-term mortgage loans, at low interest rates, to those who were in urgent need of funds for the protection and preservation of their homes, and were unable to procure the needed financing through the normal channels. The great majority of these loans were granted in order that home owners might refinance defaulted mortgages and save their homes from foreclosure.

FEDERAL HOUSING ADMINISTRATION

AUTHORITY—Public Act No. 479, Seventy-third Congress, approved June 27, 1934, and amended by Public Act No. 76, Seventy-fourth Congress, approved May 28, 1935; Executive Order No. 7126, August 5, 1935; Executive Order No. 7280, January 28, 1936; Public Act No. 486, April 3, 1936; Public Act No. 525, April 17, 1936.

PURPOSE—The National Housing Act confers dual functions upon the Federal Housing Administration. Title I of the act, embodying a short-term modernization program, authorizes the Administrator to insure lending institutions against losses suffered on account of loans made for the purpose of repairing, improving, or modernizing real property up to 10 percent of the aggregate amount of such loans made by each such lending institution. Title II of the act provides for a long-term mortgage insurance program to be carried out by means of a mutual mortgage insurance fund operated by the Administrator. Under this title, the Administrator is authorized to insure first-mortgage loans made by approved lending institutions. The Administrator is also authorized under title II of the act to insure mortgages upon low-cost housing projects undertaken by Federal, State, municipal, or other public agencies and by private limited-dividend corporations. The Administration itself has no authority under the act to make mortgage loans, and the entire mortgage insurance program operates through the channels of private financial enterprise, the function of the Administration being that of an insurer of mortgage loans.

FOREIGN-TRADE ZONES BOARD

AUTHORITY—Public Act No. 397, Seventy-third Congress, approved June 18, 1934; Executive Order No. 7104. dated July 18, 1935.

PURPOSE—The purpose of the Board is to provide for the establishment, operation, and maintenance of foreign-trade zones in ports of entry of the United States, and to expedite and encourage foreign commerce. The Board is authorized, subject to conditions and restrictions of the act, to grant to corporations, both public and private, the privilege of establishing, operating, and maintaining foreign-trade zones in or adjacent to ports of entry under the jurisdiction of the United States. Into these zones foreign and domestic merchandise of every description not prohibited by law may be brought without being subject to the customs laws of the United States, except as otherwise provided. This merchandise may not be manufactured or exhibited in the zones but may be stored, broken up, repacked, assembled, distributed, sorted, graded, cleaned, mixed with foreign or domestic merchandise, or otherwise manipulated, and be exported. Foreign merchandise may be sent from zones into customs territory of the United States in the original package or otherwise; but when foreign merchandise is so sent from a zone into customs territory of the United States it shall be subject to the laws and regulations of the United States affecting imported merchandise. Each port of entry is entitled to at least one zone, except where two cities separated by water are embraced in one port of entry, in which case a zone may be authorized in each city. For the purpose of carrying out the provisions of the act, the Board has established an Interdepartmental Committee on Foreign-Trade Zones.

PURPOSE — The functions of this Corporation are to provide emergency financing facilities for financial institutions; to aid in financing agriculture, commerce, and industry; to purchase preferred stock, capital notes or debentures of banks, trust companies, and insurance companies; and to make loans and the allocation of its funds as prescribed by law. The Corporation is authorized by Public Act No. 35 to subscribe for preferred stock and purchase the capital notes of insurance companies, and by Public Act No. 4, Seventy-third Congress, to provide for direct loans by Federal Reserve banks to State banks and trust companies in certain cases. The Corporation has authority to make loans to drainage, levee, and irrigation districts, and political subdivisions. By the act of January 31, 1935, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is permitted to make to railroads additional loans and commitments. It also is authorized to make loans to non-profit corporations for the repair of damages caused by floods or other catastrophes during the years 1933-36, inclusive.

INFORMATION — For further information communicate with the Chairman of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, 1825 H Street NW., Washington, D. C. Telephone, DIstrict 4911.

JESSE H. JONES,
Chairman of the Board of Directors.
